UCEAP Japan: Back and stronger than ever

On March 11, 2011 at 2:46 p.m, Japan's most powerful earthquake hit the Asia Pacific. The quake was followed by a devastating tsunami, with waves as high as 130 feet. The country was further devastated by damage to the reactors at TEPCO's Fukushima Daiichi Nuclear Power Plant that forced nearly 100,000 residents to evacuate. These three compounding disasters left UCEAP with a complex and challenging task. The new academic term had not yet begun and UC students were scheduled to depart for Japan in a week. There were also 77 UC students midway through their year-long study in Japan. Their scattered whereabouts were not readily known that afternoon, as it also happened to be spring break in Japan. Harlan J. Strauss: From the Pentagon to Hollywood

Harlan Strauss was a member of the inaugural group of 14 UC students that traveled to Lund University, Sweden in 1966. Harlan believes participation in UCEAP was fundamental to his personal and career development over the decades that followed. Following a Ph.D. at the University of Oregon in political science, Harlan worked for the House of Representatives in Washington, D.C. as Research Director for the Republican Leadership, then Chief Speechwriter for the Republican Party. Continue Reading
